Assessment criteria for the training programme for three levels

|             | LEVEL A: BEGINNER                               | LEVEL B: INTERMEDIATE                             | LEVEL C: ADVANCED                               |
|-------------|---|---|---|
| Overview of | I am already willing to interact successfully   | As a result of experience and/or training, I am   | Many of the competences I developed             |
|             | with people of other cultures. I tend to pick   | beginning to view more coherently some of the     | consciously at the intermediate level have      |
| competence  | things up and learn from them as I go along     | aspects of intercultural encounters I used to     | become intuitive. I am constantly ready for     |
|             | but I haven't yet the experience to work out    | deal with in a 'one-off way'. I have a mental     | situations and encounters in which I will       |
|             | any system of dealing with inter cultural       | 'map' or 'checklists' of the sort of situations I | exercise my knowledge, judgement and skills     |
|             | situations in general. I respond to events,     | am likely to need to deal with and am             | and have a large repertoire of strategies for   |
|             | rather than planning for them. At times I may   | developing my skills to cope with them. This      | dealing with differences in values, custums     |
|             | be perplexed by the different ways of working   | means that I am more prepared for the need        | and practices among members of the              |
|             | and organisation of people from other cultures. | to respond and adapt to the demands of            | intercultural group, I not only accept that     |
|             | At this stage I am reasonably tolerant of other | unfamiliar situations. I am quicker to see        | people can see things from widely varying       |
|             | values, customs and practices although I may    | patterns in the various experiences I have and    | perspectives and are entitled to do so, but am  |
|             | find them odd and surprising and I may          | I am beginning to draw conclusions without        | able to put myself in their place and avoid     |
|             | approve or disapprove.                          | having to seek advice. I find it easier to        | behaviour I sense would be hurtful or           |
|             |   | respond in a neutral way to difference, rather    | offensive. At this level of operation I am able |
|             |   | than approving or disapproving.                   | to intercede when difficulties arise and        |
|             |   |   | tactfully support other members of the group    |
|             |   |   | in understanding each other. I am confident     |
|             |   |   | enough of my position to tacke a polite stand   |
|             |   |   | over issues despite my respect for the          |
|             |   |   | viewpoint of others.                            |
